Solidarity Ukraine

Our action over the last 6 months

Unfortunately, we know that this is a war that will last. ”

Karine Meaux

Russia invaded Ukraine already 6 months ago. On February 24, 2022, the first Russian offensive marked the beginning of one of the most important conflict on European soil since the Second World War.

Very quickly, Fondation de France rallied to support the local population and the refugees. To date, nearly 15 million were collected thanks to generous donors. This surge of solidarity has enabled Fondation de France to identify and support some fifty initiatives led in particular by local Ukrainian, Polish, Romanian or Moldavian organizations, with a dual objective: to provide emergency aid while ensuring that its action is sustainable!

Six months after the beginning of the war, the situation is far from being stabilized. «We now know that this is a war that is going to last,» says Karine Meaux, Head of the International Solidarity and Emergencies Department. Fondation de France therefore continues to support humanitarian aid and human rights projects. These actions are carried out primarily in Ukraine, where the needs are greatest today, but also in neighboring countries.

«Many Ukrainians want to return home,» explains Karine Meaux. «With the start of the school year approaching, the question raises of what will happen to the people currently housed in schools and gymnasiums. Food is also an issue, as local production may not be sufficient to feed everyone starting this winter.»

In order to identify priority needs on the ground, Fondation de France has organized several missions, the last one to Ukraine in June 2022. Its committee of experts continues to meet every month to support new projects and discuss priorities.

Fondation de France remains faithful to its principles of intervention in the context of emergencies: actions considered in the long term, priority given to local actors while regularly evaluating the impacts. «We always focus on long term support, but given the dramatic situation on the ground, emergency aid will have to continue for several more months,» concludes Karine Meaux.

50 PROJECTS SUPPORTED
OF WHICH 25 IN UKRAINE

More than 12 million people, or one quarter of the Ukrainian population, had to flee their homes since February 24th.

Actions supported in Ukraine

While many Ukrainians fled their country to seek refuge in neighboring countries during the first months of the war, the largest number of displaced persons are now in Ukraine. There are approximately an estimated 7 million displaced persons in Ukraine.

Fondation de France is therefore increasingly focusing its action in Ukraine on humanitarian projects first and foremost, but also on human rights (right to information, the fight against human trafficking, etc.)

The organizations supported are mainly located West of the country, where the situation is safer, but they regularly operate in the East and South, where the most affected populations are located.

The aim of Fondation de France is to bring support to the most vulnerable populations.

«In times of war, everyone is vulnerable,» says Karine Meaux. «Caring for the most vulnerable therefore means reaching out to populations who do not have access to the aid provided by other actors either because they are too isolated, cannot register in the classic system (people with disabilities, the elderly, without access to the Internet, minority groups ...) or because they have specific needs.»

In a complex crisis situation, the added value of Fondation de France is to support agile and impactful actors. Regarding the war in Ukraine, this translates into support for a few international organizations with experience in emergency response, but above all for a wide variety of local actors recommended by its networks: organizations anchored in their territories, associations and civil society movements, cooperatives mobilized for their fellow citizens...

This guarantees the best allocation of available resources, not only to save lives in emergency phases, but above all to strengthen local resilience to future critical events. Month after month, the Solidarity Ukraine Committee monitors changes in the crisis, needs and the interplay of actors in the territories, supported in particular by local resource persons dedicated to analyzing and monitoring in the field. It anticipates and adapts the allocation of resources accordingly, to ensure the best possible impact in the long term.

Michel Maietta, committee chairman

The humanitarian issue remains the priority

Dealing with a conflict that is getting bogged down, humanitarian issues remain the priority. This is why Fondation de France supports the IMRC association, which takes care of the victims of the war. In its operating center in Kyiv, the organization provides complete medical assistance (medical care, psychological and social support) to people affected by the war, focusing on physical and mental support.

In the province of Transcarpathia, in the Southwest of Ukraine, the Longo Mai artisanal and agricultural cooperative, established more than 30 years ago in the country, also welcomes displaced persons. «During the first months of the war, we mainly helped evacuate, feed and shelter women and children from the conflict zones,» says Oreste Del Sol, a farmer in the cooperative. «Our small village of 3,000 inhabitants has received up to 1,500 displaced persons! Today, some of these people have left, but those who remain are very poor. They come from the areas occupied by the Russians, where their houses were bombed. We are therefore in the process of setting up a shelter to accommodate them in a less precarious way. And, above all, we would like to be able to welcome and integrate permanently in the village the families who do not wish or cannot leave, by helping them to obtain housing and income.»

Fondation de France also supports the association Alliance Global, which aims to respond to the needs of displaced persons within the LGBTQ+ communities and their families, in particular by providing emergency accommodation in Lviv, Kyiv and Kharkiv.

A special focus on Human Rights

Fondation de France supports the Collectif Solidarité Ukraine, a project created by several French organizations with local partners. This initiative, which brings together some sixty actors, carries out information activities and organizes events for the public on the human rights situation, in order to educate and mobilize citizens.

In the interests of independence and freedom of information, Fondation de France supports the Press Freedom Center of the NGO Reporters Without Borders in Lviv, which aims to provide Ukrainian journalists with equipment to guarantee their safety in the field (helmets, bullet-proof vests, etc.) and thus enable them to continue reporting on the conflict.

Another major issue is the fight against human trafficking. The association Magnolia, which has been working on this issue for some 20 years and has been recording the disappearances of Ukrainian children, has received support from Fondation de France to maintain its database, coordinate with the police and NGOs and support the affected families.

Karine Meaux (Head of the International Solidarity and Emergencies Department) meets with partner organizations in Lviv, West of Ukraine, in June 2022.

The craftwork and agricultural cooperative Longo Mai, South West of Ukraine, welcomes displaced people.

Actions supported in Poland, Romania and Moldavia

Although allocating primarily the aid provided to Ukraine, Fondation de France continues to support local associations in neighboring countries that are still hosting many refugees. Here again, humanitarian issues and the defense of human rights are the main focuses guiding Fondation de France's action with the most vulnerable.

In Romania, the A.L.E.G association's project aims to prevent sexism and gender-based violence by offering cultural and awareness-raising activities to young Ukrainian refugees. For example, the association organizes workshops as part of its summer camps to deconstruct stereotypes.

In Moldova, Fondation de France supports the Motivatie project of the Keystone association, which aims to provide social and psychological support to refugees, particularly those with disabilities, by improving reception centers and distributing medicines, for example.

Finally, in Poland, the Saint-Nicholas Foundation, a Polish charity that has been working for children for around 20 years, has launched a call for projects from Polish civil society to help Ukrainian refugee children by providing them with activities (sports or artistic workshops, outings, games, etc.), psychological support, language courses, school supplies and support, etc. Ten of their projects have received support from Fondation de France.

The Hope and Homes center hosts refugee children in Romania.

Coordinated action on a European scale

Dealing with a crisis of European scope, only a coordinated response can be relevant. Fondation de France is therefore acting within a common dynamic, in partnership with other European organizations that were already active before the war in the territories affected by the conflict. This is an opportunity to rely on professional organizations with a deep knowledge of local actors, while working to strengthen their capacity for action, notably by offering training or logistical support.

For example, Fondation de France supports the Carpathian Foundation's offices in Slovakia and Hungary, which have both launched calls for projects in their territories to support associations working with Ukrainian refugees. Fondation de France also participates in two European programs: EPIM, which supports organizations working with migrants and uses part of its funds to protect the most vulnerable refugees, and Civitates, which supports independent journalism and fights against disinformation about the war in Ukraine.

Coordinated action with the French Development Agency

Fondation de France has formed a partnership with the French Development Agency (AFD) to pool resources and expertise in crisis areas.

Within this framework, a major program bringing together French NGOs and Moldovan civil society has been initiated to prevent the pressures that could result from the integration of refugees from Ukraine. Called Stability & Resilience Moldova - SRP Moldava, the project plans to strengthen early childhood, education and employment support services, as well as healthcare services.

→ Fondation de France also supports initiatives in France related to the reception of people who have fled Ukraine, particularly through its Solidarité migrants program: learning the French language, helping people resume their studies, etc. These projects help exiles, regardless of their nationality, to integrate.
